THE CARIBOO COLLEGE ACTORS WORKSHOP THEATRE

Welcome to this year's production of the Cariboo College Actors Workshop Theatre. Voice of the People, Heroes, and Halftime at Halcyon Days present the members of the College's Theatre 121 and 221 classes on stage before the public.

The workshop format minimizes the technical aspects of theatre: set, costume, make-up and lighting are intended to give only the vaguest impression of the playwright's world.

The focus of these productions is on the representative skills of the actors to bring to life the characters that they are portraying. It is important to remember that the actors, in fulfilling the requirements of Theatre 121 and 221, were instrumental in the development of their characters, and many of the nuances of these stage personalities came exclusively from the creativity of these individuals and, for the first time, the help, input and guidance of the three student directors.
