NEWS RELEASE #1986/12.3

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

December 19, 1986

Beginning in January, Cariboo College will be offering an evening course on local history. Dr. Andrew Yarmie of the Department of Social Science will be instructing this course which is designed to give a deeper understanding of the methods of writing the local history of the Kamloops region.

Joan Weir, also an instructor at the college and author of local historical works including: Walachin: Catastrophe or Camelot, Canada's Gold Rush Church, and The Caledonians says, "If you're concerned about not having any ideas for a local history topic, don't be. By the end of the course you will have dozens. And the challenge of selecting a topic, researching it, verifying that research, then developing your history into final written form for class presentation is a thoroughly satisfying experience".

For further information, contact Andrew Yarmie, at 374-0123, Local 2239 or the Admissions Office at 374-0123, Local 2037.
