Welcome from the University College of the Cariboo

Welcome to the Third Annual UCC Senior Secondary Model United Nations simulation conference. On behalf of UCC I take great pleasure in welcoming the delegates representing many countries, the organizing executive from NorKam Secondary, the UCC bloc advisors, the students from Beattie, honoured guests and observers, and all the many others who have in anyway contributed to making this annual Senior Secondary Model UN Conference possible. I trust that all the time spent in preparation will be rewarded and that this special sitting of the UN General Assembly will be meaningful for all involved. In a special way I want to thank School District #24, the City Council of Kamloops, Weyerhaeuser of Canada Ltd, and UCC for assisting financially in this venture. Without the enthusiasm and co-operation of many UCC, and NorKam Secondary students, an event of this magnitude would flounder.

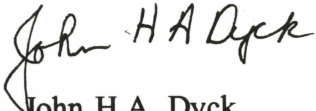

The United Nations is celebrating its fiftieth anniversary this year. Born in the ashes of the Second World War with the objective "to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war," and to "reaffirm faith in fundamental human rights" the United Nations resolved that through united action international peace and security could be maintained. Having survived the ravages of the Cold War, the United Nations is now the subject of much attention as reform of some of its institutions is contemplated. The General Assembly is a special organ of the United Nations: it was designed to foster goodwill, peace and dialogue among the approximately 190 recognized nation-states in the world. In marked contrast to the Security Council which recognizes the elitism of great power politics, the Assembly "effuses the democratic ethos of egalitarianism, parliamentarianism, and majoritarianism. To the degree that it has been successful in delaying or avoiding the outbreak of violence and war between states by allowing states to air their grievances, register their complaints, and pass resolutions calling for united action, the United Nations General Assembly has fulfilled its original mandate.

Today, you delegates have been charged with an awesome task. You have been challenged to address and deliberate on issues which continue to frustrate and confound peoples throughout the world. All too often the official foreign policy of states has been based on ideology, the protection of economic or political advantage, a corresponding lack of moral commitment to humanitarian issues, and a reluctance to engage in any action which might be perceived by others as acknowledging some responsibility for the current state of world affairs.

There is much work for you to do today. Think of yourselves as carrying the full authority of the state which you represent. The challenge is to step outside of your Canadian identity and assume the perspective of the government which you are representing. The more closely you are able to correctly represent the foreign policy of your government, the more closely this exercise will reflect what really occurs at the United Nations General Assembly in New York City.

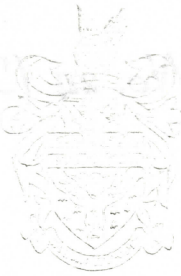

All the best to each of you!

WELCOME FROM THE MAYOR

On behalf of my colleagues on Council and the citizens of Kamloops, I am pleased to welcome each of you both to our city and, most especially, to the U.N. MODEL ASSEMBLY.

Having been a member of the Board of Trustees of S.D.#24 as well as the Board of Cariboo College, I continue to recognize the importance of unique events such as this which connect students who share social and political concerns.

While a whole year has passed since your last U.N. Model Assembly, not much has changed in terms of resolving conflicts and restoring peace to war-torn countries whose people have become victims of economic and social strife.

We hope that your conference will be a new and positive learning experience and that your ability to brainstorm, to challenge the status quo and to put a new spin on old methods of problem-solving will be a catalyst to bring about some badly needed changes to our world as we know it.

We know, too, that by working together, you will ensure that the this day will have lasting consequences for our region, our province, our country.

Most sincerely,

TED S. PARAVANTES, Principal

February 17, 1995

NorKam is very happy to host this year's United Nations Model Assembly. On behalf of our students, teachers and staff, I welcome you. We are delighted to be part of this special tradition.

During this "Assembly," I urge you to keep your minds open to all forms of learning and experiences that you feel will help you become purposefully and responsibly involved in a world engaged in the struggle for peace, the struggle against hunger, ignorance, underdevelopment and change.

For the first time in our history, we have to share ideas and actions with people abroad who have a wide range of knowledge and culture. At the same time, we are experiencing our own technological revolution here.

No people in history ever had to cope with so many changes on so many fronts at one time.

Your task, I hope, is not to consider what is most popular or expedient, but to find the truth and pass judgement accordingly.

I wish you well.

Sincerely,

T. S. Paravantes,
Principal
NorKam Secondary

To All Delegates at the 1995 United Nations Model Assembly,

We welcome you on behalf of the Executive of the General Assembly. We are pleased that we are able to share this event with you, our fellow students from various secondary schools.

This year will be one of reflection, for looking at our own role in today's world. The Federal Republic of Germany has proposed that the General Assembly should have the ability to encourage countries in the effective use of birth control, while the Netherlands has asked that the General Assembly discuss the possibility of a United Nations standing army, whose peacetime role would be decided later.

It is necessary to keep in mind what your country's best interests are. Each delegate here at the Model Assembly is equal and deserving of respect. We are all here to learn and to develop an understanding of the United Nations. Every delegate will have the opportunity to voice an opinion in the Bloc meetings which will be presided over by an advisor, who is there to help ensure that all of the delegates are fully prepared to represent their country's interests and concerns in the General Assembly.

The Executive is aware that there will be times when your personal opinions may differ from those of the country you represent, but this is a Model Assembly. We know that we can count on the support of the delegates to do what they can to make the day a total success.

This year we are privileged to have a copy of the United Nations' 50th Anniversary music video, "Hand in Hand," and we hope that all of you will have the chance to view it. Today is a day to discover, to experience, and to lead. This is my first opportunity to take part in a Model Assembly and I am certainly looking forward to it. By working together, we can ensure a rewarding day for all.

Sincerely,

Assembly

UN Model Assembly
Rules of Procedure

1. Scope: The rules have been agreed to before this assembly. They are not subject to change.
2. Language: English is the preferred and working language of the Assembly.
3. Quorum The president of the General Assembly will declare the Assembly open when at least 1/4 of the members are present. A member of the Assembly is a representative of a nation who is officially registered with the Conference.
4. Courtesy: All delegates will show courtesy and respect to the Committee and to other delegates.
5. Debate: After the President has declared the Assembly open, a speaker's list will be made for the purpose of a general debate. After the Speaker's List has been established, it will be followed by debate on the topic area unless there are procedural motions, amendments, or new resolutions. Once a resolution has been introduced, it will remain on the floor until it either fails, or the General Assembly postpones debate.
6. Speaker's List: The Speaker's List is open to anyone who wishes to speak while the topic is still being discussed. A representative may add its name to the Speaker's List by sending their nation's name in writing to the chair, as long as their name has not already been submitted.
7. Speech Procedure No delegate may address the Committee or the Assembly without having obtained permission from the President. Permission from the President is obtained when a delegate sends the name of their country to the Committee, in the form of a request to be placed on the Speaker's List.
8. Speaking Time Limits: Speaking time when introducing a resolution will be 3 minutes. Speaking time for any other purpose will be 2 minutes.

- 9. Yielding: A delegate may yield the remainder of their speaking time to another nation's delegate. A delegate may also yield the remainder of their speaking time to questions from the floor. Questions from the floor will be selected by the President and will be limited to one per delegate, unless otherwise allowed by the President. The President has the right to call any delegate to order if the President decides that the question is out of order, rhetorical, leading, and/or not designed to elicit information. If the delegate accepts the speaking time yielded to him/her they may not then yield back to the original speaker.
**A delegate must always yield their speaking time to the President after they have finished speaking.
- 10. Point of Personal Privilege: If a delegate experiences personal discomfort which impairs his/her ability to participate, a Point of Personal Order may be raised, so that the delegate can ask that the situation be remedied. Delegates must use this right only if it is of the most importance, so that no speaking delegate is interrupted unnecessarily.
- 11. Point of Order: During the discussion of any matter, a delegate may call a Points of Order to complain of departure from Parliamentary Procedure. Points of Order may only interrupt if the speaker has not followed Parliamentary Procedure.
- 12. Point of Parliamentary Inquiry: When the floor is open (no one is speaking), a delegate can make a Point of Parliamentary Inquiry to ask the President a question about the rules of procedure and/or conduct. A Parliamentary Inquiry may never interrupt a speaker.
- 13. Right of Reply: If a delegate feels that his/her personal or national integrity has been insulted, he or she may ask for a Right of Reply. The President's decision whether or not to grant the Right of Reply is final and not open to appeals. A delegate may not have a Right of Reply if a Right of Reply has just been directed to him/her.
- 14. Working Resolution Paper: Working resolution papers require the signature of the Bloc Advisor and the President of the General Assembly.
- 15. Introduceing a Working Resolution Paper: Once a working resolution paper has the approval of the Bloc Advisor and the President of the General Assembly, a delegate may rise to introduce the working resolution paper. This introduction is strictly procedural, and therefore yields are out of order. A working resolution paper will remain on the floor until debate on that working resolution paper is closed. Debate on working resolution papers proceeds according to the general Speaker's List.

- 16. Amendments: Delegates may amend any resolution which has been introduced. amendments require the approval of the Bloc Advisor, as well as the President of the General Assembly. Once approved, a delegate must introduce the amendment from the Speaker's List. The President will then establish a special speaker's list, with two speakers for and two speakers against the amendment. A two thirds majority is required for the amendment to pass. Once the General Assembly has acted, debate will resume according to the general Speaker's List on the resolution, in amended form if the amendment was passed, and in its original form if the amendment is defeated.
- 17. Closure of Debate: When the floor is open, a delegate may move to close debate on the matter under discussion. The President of the General Assembly may or may not accept this motion. If the motion is accepted, two speakers will be allowed to speak against it, and no speakers will be allowed to speak in favour of the motion. Closure of debate requires a two thirds majority of members present and voting. If the motion to close is passed, it will be followed immediately by a vote on the resolution or amendment on the floor.
- 18. Voting: Each member state of the United Nations will have one vote. Observer nations are not permitted to vote. Each state may vote yes, no, or abstain. On procedural motions, members may not abstain. members present are those nations which vote yes or no. States which abstain are considered as not voting. Voting will be done by placard. If a majority is required, ties fail. There will be passing of notes allowed during a vote.
- 19. Adjournment: When the floor is open, a delegate may move to adjourn the conference. The President of the General Assembly may rule this motion Out of Order. A motion to adjourn is Out of Order before the lapse of half the time allotted for the final session of the General Assembly. If the motion is in order, there will be an immediate vote to adjourn the conference, which requires a majority to pass. A motion to adjourn will close debate on the current topic without a vote

TO HELP PASS A MOTION:

1. Second it immediately. Say: "I second it."
2. Speak in favour of it while it is still before the body.
3. Vote for it.
4. Vote against postponing it to rescue it.
5. Amend it sensibly to perfect it or improve it.
6. Vote against referring it, to achieve action now.
7. Vote down all postponements that delay it.
8. Defeat the previous question so you can continue to debate its meritorious points.
9. Vote against tabling it.
10. Defeat recess so that they may not go seeking more votes.
11. Vote against their motions to reconsider.
12. Vote down all motions to adjourn, so as to achieve adoption of your motion now.
13. It is votes that win elections and other important proceedings at meetings and conferences. Have your supporters there to help you with their votes.
