UCC Enrolments Buck the Trend

Despite waning enrolment numbers at post-secondary institutions around the province, enrolments are up 3% at UCC. Figures presented to the UCC Board on September 21st show 5,709 students currently registered in credit programs, an increase of almost 200 students over last year's fall total.

These numbers include over 3,600 students in university degree programs; 1000 students in Career/Technology programs; over 400 students in College Preparation; and almost 800 students in trades and vocational programs.

UCC's Williams Lake campus also shows an increase of 2%, with fall registrations totalling 419 students. The second largest increase is in the College Preparation Department, where an 11% increase may reflect increasing numbers of BC Benefits clients returning to upgrade their education.

The largest percentage gain is in the International Education Department, with a 26% increase in enrolments. This increase is due in part to the recent raising of UCC's quota for international student enrolments, and to increased international recruitment efforts on the part of UCC, which have combined to put UCC on the international post-secondary map as one of a handful of BC post-secondary institutions with a truly internationalized campus.

New Vision

This year, UCC, along with other BC post-secondary institutions, will develop a three-year plan. On October 9, a group of faculty, students, administration and support staff met with Don Norris, co-author of Transforming Higher Education: A Vision for the 21st Century, to develop a process that will involve participation from all members of the UCC campus community. This multi-stakeholder group will develop a vision, or visions, for UCC which will form the basis for a new three-year educational planning process.

Distance Diploma

UCC just graduated a student in St. John's, Newfoundland, with an Anesthesia Technology diploma. This was done by distance education, with a clinical rotation set up through the Anesthesia Department at Memorial University.

Partnerships

UCC Vice-President Instruction, Neil Russell, met with UNBC Vice-President Deborah Poff last month to discuss potential initiatives. Three potential projects will be discussed in the next couple of months, including a Masters in Community Health for Kamloops with telecommunication linkages to Williams Lake and Quesnel; a ladder degree program in Natural Resource Management for the Shuswap Nation; and a locally delivered BA program in Williams Lake.

Also in September, UCC Associate Dean of Science Colin James and VP Neil Russell met with the College of New Caledonia's Vice-President and Science Chair to discuss the feasibility of a Forestry Technology program for Williams Lake. A meeting with industry representatives and potential funding agencies to discuss partnership possibilities will be held at the end of October.

A LETTER FROM ROSE

A Big Warm Thank You and Hug to all my dear friends at UCC: Thank you so much for all the cards, warm wishes, and kind, encouraging words during my illness. You are all very special and you mean so much to me. This is what makes me heal—knowing that I have so many good friends at UCC, who love and care for me. The feeling is mutual. I'm still being treated for my illness and it will take some time, but I will be back and look forward to seeing you all soon!

All my Love
Rose Mantello

ANOTHER FIRST FOR UCC

The University College of the Cariboo is the first degree-granting university college in British Columbia to gain institutional membership in the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada (AUCC). The AUCC is an umbrella organization for degree-granting institutions in Canada, and its admittance of UCC to its ranks lends an additional level of credibility to UCC degrees.

The President of the University College of Cape Breton, the only other university college in Canada to have membership in the AUCC, was the first institution to send a congratulatory message.

In sharing the good news, UCC President Jim Wright stated that "this is a significant achievement for UCC and for university colleges in British Columbia. It provides a new level of credibility to our academic programs, provides our faculty with access to a wider range of research funds and, perhaps most importantly, it ensures that our degree recipients will be accepted across Canada and beyond."

Future Plans

Beginning this Fall, the Senate Subcommittee on Post Secondary Education will seek solutions to the many challenges faced by post-secondary institutions in Canada. The Subcommittee will hear from individual students and presidents, organizations and unions, researchers and teachers, parents and CEOs.

"I believe the time has come for action, for a cross-Canada debate on the future of post-secondary education in this country," states Senator Lorne Bonnell, sponsor of last spring's Senate's Inquiry into the serious state of post-secondary education in Canada.

As well as listening to ideas related to maintaining quality post-secondary educational opportunities for Canadians, the Subcommittee will investigate the creation of national guidelines for post-secondary education. The Subcommittee has already come up with a list of values for higher education in Canada, which includes partnerships, affordability, accessibility, transferability, and comprehensiveness.
